Dear Friends and Supporters,

The year 2017 was one of synergy and growth at Rebuilding Together NYC, and we are proud to share the following stories about New Yorkers from all over the city, and particularly, the stories of the communities that make them. We have been fortunate to serve our neighbors in all five boroughs for almost 20 years, but never before have we moved our mission forward with the strength in capacity and shared vision as we do now.

Rebuilding Together NYC was founded in 1998 as an entirely volunteer operation, with a vision that safety, health, and housing are human rights that everyone deserves. After a few years, we hired our first staff person and were completing multiple projects a year. When Hurricane Sandy hit the northeast coast in October, 2012, the need for our services skyrocketed, as did the demands from local residents who were hungry to rebuild their communities safer and stronger. These demands were met by an exponentially growing budget. In just five years, our budget grew ten times larger than before the storm.

In 2017, we operated with 14 full time staff and two full-time AmeriCorps members. Having outgrown our 1,200 square foot office space in Red Hook, in May we moved into our new 4,300 square foot headquarters in Gowanus, a space that offers more room for our larger team, an onsite Workforce Development training facility, warehouse, and Salvage Store.

As our staff capacity has grown, our responsibility to deliver efficient and quality work has also grown. There is a tremendous and growing need for our services, as the number of low-income residents in our city and the systems that perpetuate cycles of poverty continue to increase in numbers and power. In response, we challenged ourselves to deepen our impact in communities and sharpen our focus, by layering our programs areas, forging coordinated community partnerships, and creating comprehensive and measurable change in the lives of low-income New Yorkers.

From our ongoing work in neighborhoods like Brownsville, to the expansion of our Workforce Training Program, to the incredible energy and success of initiatives like our women in real estate-led She Builds, the relationship between housing and employment grows more evident with each passing day. As we work to cultivate a skilled labor force and preserve the affordable housing stock, we dive deeper towards long-lasting change, and resilient empowered communities throughout New York City.

We thank you for joining us in this work, and for your support of low-income communities in our city. We enter our nineteenth year humbled by the homes and lives we have been welcomed into, and it is the stories we have heard and had the honor to share that give us the knowledge that there is still a great deal more urgent work left to do.

Together, we are rebuilding New York City.

“My mom and brother-in-law are both disabled. We worked hard as a family to provide a safe and comfortable home for them. We did the alteration ourselves, including building a ramp. It made a difference in their lives and created an improved quality of life for both of them.

Knowing that the mission of Rebuilding Together NYC is about creating that for those who can't do it themselves is just incredible. I really do have genuine love for this organization.”

Loretta T., Volunteer and 2017 House Captain
CRITICAL HOME REPAIR

Since 1998, Rebuilding Together NYC has provided critical home repairs for low-income New Yorkers. Our projects consist of major repairs for residents who do not have the resources to fix pre-existing conditions, perform routine maintenance, and/or rebuild after disasters. We conduct home assessments and develop scopes of work that prioritize the health and safety of the home and its residents.

Mary S., age 72, purchased her home in Jamaica, Queens over 30 years ago. Since the death of her husband, she had lived in the home with her daughter, who has significant vision impairment, and her young grandson. In the wake of her husband's death, Mary has had increasing challenges with her mobility and has found it difficult to keep up both physically and financially with the routine maintenance and upkeep of her home.

To ensure that Mary and her family would be able to remain safely in their own home for years to come, Rebuilding Together NYC provided repairs and accessibility modifications that secure the home from water intrusion and weather, and will protect Mary and her daughter from fall risks and other hazards due to previous inaccessibility.

“Every night I go to bed and thank God for this bathroom, and thank God for the new roof above me. All that’s been done here by Rebuilding Together NYC, I never thought it could come true.”

-Mary S., Homeowner, Jamaica, Queens
Recognizing that the maintenance of safe and healthy homes and communities is contingent upon the financial stability of the individuals inside those homes and communities, we piloted our Workforce Training Program in 2015 to bolster our work in housing preservation and community revitalization.

As a pre-apprenticeship professional development program, our curriculum is designed to help unemployed or underemployed New Yorkers gain the skills, resources, and knowledge needed to obtain well-paying jobs in construction that will assist the individual in exiting the cycle of poverty. As a direct entry partner with a number of trade unions, we are uniquely positioned to connect our students to viable opportunities for career advancement and upward mobility.

During the program, students undergo three weeks of comprehensive classroom curriculum and three weeks of high impact field training. They perform repairs at our critical home repair and community center projects, gaining valuable experience on real construction job sites.

IN 2017, WE:

- Trained 53 previously unemployed or underemployed individuals for construction sector jobs
- Opened our new training facility in Gowanus, Brooklyn
- Gained direct entry status with several New York State registered apprenticeship programs
- Secured funding from NYS Department of Labor to train and place residents into apprenticeship programs
- Received new funding from Robin Hood Foundation and New York City Housing Authority (NYCHA), which allowed us to double the size of our program from 50 to 100 participants trained per year

“All it took to succeed was a little patience and determination. All I wanted ever was simply to succeed. When a person is tired of being sick and tired of their struggle, they’ll succeed. No matter what.”
- Desire, Cohort 19
In 2017, Rebuilding Together NYC recruited 1,093 volunteers, who donated 6,694.5 hours, or $350,945 in in-kind labor.

“It is equally rewarding to volunteer in both homes and community spaces. With a homeowner, you can meet and see who you are helping. You can sit down and speak with them and get to know them. It is such an incredible experience. At a community space, you can really see how it can have a positive impact on the larger community. During one of our volunteer days, a community member came and spoke to us about bringing his son to the basketball court that we were repairing, but hadn’t for years due to its condition. No one had taken care of the place and he was so thankful that we were there. It was powerful to hear. You can really say our work has impacted the community.”

- Maria Bruckmire, Volunteer Captain
In 2017, we embarked on a project to identify one New York City neighborhood in which to develop strong partnerships; double-down on home repair, community revitalization, and workforce training efforts; and better measure the impact of our work across a variety of indicators.

With support from volunteers at Barclays, we collected data on poverty levels, foreclosure rates, population age and ability, and housing stock age and ability across the city, and identified six geographic areas that might benefit most from our services.

From there, we reached out to local leaders and community-based organizations and held a series of active listening sessions. During those sessions, we got to know the stakeholders and issues happening on the ground in their neighborhoods.

Ultimately, we landed on Brownsville, a Brooklyn neighborhood with some of the highest rates of poverty and unemployment in the country, and also some of the most coordinated and resilient residents. People from Brownsville love Brownsville, and are ever-willing to support their community.

“The Brownsville Partnership believes that public-private partnerships are critical to solving challenges that are pervasive in underserved communities. Rebuilding Together NYC has positioned itself as a key partner and change maker in the fight against poverty in the Brownsville community.

Through their commitment to helping the Brownsville community revitalize and transform private homes, parks, community centers, and public spaces, Rebuilding Together NYC is helping nonprofits like ours to restore hope and promise in this incredibly resilient community. In the future, we will look back on this partnership and realize that it was a true catalyst for positive collective impact.”

-Mary Tobin, Director, Brownsville Partnership
GOALS & RESULTS: BROWNSVILLE

Goals:

• Identify a stakeholder network and collaborate with residents, community leaders, and fellow providers on initiatives that impact safe and healthy housing, vital communities, and economic stability.

• Pilot an initiative in Brownsville including an outreach campaign, community renovation projects, and home repairs.

• Develop strong impact evaluation to measure our work in Brownsville.

Results:

• Developed a close partnership with the Brownsville Partnership, a project of Community Solutions.

• Attended the Brownsville Monthly Partner Meetings where we met stakeholders, shared information across programs and initiatives, coordinated efforts, and evaluated our effectiveness.

• Partnered with Civic Hall Labs to participate in Delta.NYC – an initiative designed to bridge the worlds of nonprofit and tech through pro-bono support. With this opportunity, we have begun to operationalize new points of data collection and analysis. We look forward to telling the story of our impact with greater data starting in 2018.

We held two major rebuild events in Brownsville during 2017: She Builds and Fall Rebuilding Day.

Through those events, we renovated four community spaces, installed solar-powered exterior lights on a commercial corridor to improve neighborhood safety, engaged hundreds of Brownsville volunteers, and strengthened our partnerships with key leaders and nonprofit providers.
She Builds is a women in real estate-led rebuild initiative designed to harness the technical knowledge and skills of high-powered female industry leaders to promote safe and healthy living conditions for women and families in New York City.

She Builds demonstrates the tremendous impact women can have when they work together, and on behalf of one another.

2017 Project Impact

On September 28, 2017, nearly 100 volunteers from almost 30 companies helped 400 families living in two transitional housing shelters operated by the nonprofit organization, Win. The volunteers:

• Sanded and scraped peeling and damaged paint and re-painted throughout the outdoor space, playgrounds, and indoor hallways
• Scraped rust off i-beams above the courtyard
• Built a brand new greenhouse
• Assembled and distributed 400 Safe and Healthy Housing kits to residents
• Gave more than 400 children a safe and inviting place to play and exercise
• Garnered attention to the true face of homelessness in NYC – that of women and children
• Demonstrated the power of women in real estate and their commitment to low-income communities

"Women in the real estate community are a passionate group, and fighters by nature. It was an easy connection—real estate women helping to improve the real estate of others. The rebuild work is immediately gratifying—and you can see tangibly the impact it creates in people's lives and well-being. I look forward to deepening the impact of the She Builds initiative through the implementation of the policy incentives the committee is working towards. In particular, I hope to train more women in construction jobs and give them real opportunities with real estate owners and developers. A job can be a real game changer in someone's life."

- Laurie Grasso, Co-Chair

"It's powerful to watch empowered women in real estate come together and create change in their industry and community. In what can be a male dominated field, it's critical that women support each other and radiate that support out to other women who need it—whether it's professional, material, or emotional support. It's humbling to be a part of a committee that has the ability and drive to make lasting, positive impact on the lives of low-income women and families throughout New York City. What started off as a planning committee for a one-time volunteer project has grown into a very special and effective vehicle for women's empowerment."
